Seventh Street N.W.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, October 24,-Bacteriological analysis was defended as the only satisfactory basis for the grading of milk, in an address before the laboratory section of the American of the Connecticut state board of health. Mr. Conn took up the various purchasers' and dealers, and gave an answer to each one by quoting the the subject which he had made in Connecticut.

"For a long time the dairy industry has strongly insisted upon the retaining of one price of milk by every possible means," said Mr. Conn. summarising the points he had made. This they have done, doubtless, to protect the better dealers from the cutthroat prices of those who are willing to produce milk cheaply and carelessly. Unfortunately the result has been to bring all of the higher grades of milk down almost to the level of the lower. In no other industry can it be said that the poorer grades bring the same price in market as the higher grades. Under these conditions there is not any stimulus to produce a higher grade of milk. The better class of dairymen receivent they can get no better grade, since they can get no better price than their slovenly competitor.
